

Become a Certified Family Life Educator (CFLE)

ASU T. Denny Sanford School of Social and Family Dynamics
Arizona State University

ASU students are now eligible to earn the Certified Family Life Educator from NCFR

Why should I become a Certified Family Life Educator?

The CFLE credential is the nationally recognized standard in Family Life Education, and it validates your experience and knowledge as a Family Life Educator.

Employers know that by hiring a CFLE, they're bringing in someone with proven knowledge, skills, and abilities.

It's easy... and you don't have to take the CFLE exam!

The Family and Human Development undergraduate program at Arizona State University was recently designated as a Certified Family Life Educator (CFLE) Approved Program by the National Council on Family Relations (NCFR). This designation allows graduates of the Sanford School who complete the required coursework to fast-track their application to become Certified Family Life Educators (CFLE) without taking the CFLE exam.

You are already taking approved courses for your degree. You're halfway there!

With half of the courses required for this credential already required for your degree, you can become a CFLE with just a few more steps that will greatly benefit you in your career!

Visit thesanfordschool.asu.edu/cfle to apply!

Questions? For more information, contact:

Dr. Dan Erickson, the CFLE Director at ASU
ericksondh@asu.edu

thesanfordschool.asu.edu/cfle