

THE BRIDGS CENTER

BRINGING RESEARCH & INNOVATION INTO THE DEBATE ON GUNS IN SOCIETY

We are pleased to announce the BRIDGS Emergent Scholar Fellowship.

The BRIDGS Center focuses on social science approaches to the multifaceted significance of guns in society. We are seeking graduate fellows interested in topics including, but not limited to:

- the culture and politics of armed self-defense
- gun violence and gun trauma
- guns, identity, and inequality
- gun markets and the gun industry
- social movements surrounding gun rights and/or gun control
- comparative/transnational approaches to guns in society
- the intersection of guns, conservation, and environmental justice
- related topics grounded in qualitative or quantitative social science approaches

Eligibility

US-based graduate students studying at US institutions from disciplines within and related to the social sciences may apply.

While there are no restrictions as to the stage of graduate study, fellows should prepare to share a work-in-progress in Spring 2024.

Benefits

Workshop: In Spring 2024, BRIDGS Fellows will meet monthly to present and discuss their work-in-progress and network with senior scholars.

Symposium: In Fall 2024, BRIDGS Fellows will be invited Arizona State University's Inaugural Guns in Society Annual Symposium.

Support: BRIDGS Fellows will receive a $1,000 Fellows honorarium for Spring 2024 and a $500 travel honorarium for the Fall 2024 Symposium.

Apply Online by November 1st
